I love and enjoy affection and physical comfort. I enjoy spending time with you and being your constant companion. I am sensitive to your feelings and emotions and want to please you. With some training I can be good in some dog sports but am just as happy going out on a trip with you and the family. I need a warm and cozy place to live. I am here to make my owner happy; if you're happy, I'm happy. I love to be touched, hugged, loved and admired. I am sensitive, smart and loyal. I am also methodical and deliberate. I need security because I tend to get over-attached easily once we've bonded. I count on you and like knowing that you'll come back to me.

I am at my best when there is a daily schedule and a regular routine. It gives me a sense of order when I know what is expected of me and others. I am smart, stable, loyal and respectful. I need to be useful and enjoy having a job to do that is a regular part of my day. I have a natural guarding instinct, which means that I will try to control people and environments if I'm not given certain tasks. I will start to feel insecure if I do not know my specific job. For example, when guests come to the door and knock or ring the doorbell, what should I do? I am a working dog but can exist in a pet home if the family is willing to train me and keep a step ahead of me. I thrive on routine and predictability and need a sense of order. I like my owners to feel proud of me. I like to be of service, and I make a great companion.

I am full of energy and have a zest for life. I love having an active owner who wants to go hiking with me, takes me to the beach all the time and involves me in plenty of activities. I enjoy a lot of mental and physical stimulation, so I am always up for a fun game that can hold my attention. I am strong-willed, charming and incredibly playful. I love to play and splash around in water. You need to teach me the "rules of the game" through formal training so I can keep focused. Otherwise, I'll lose interest or make up my own rules. I may get bored and do things that get me into trouble. I'll look for things to get your attention like stealing your socks or taking a sandwich off the table to keep myself entertained.

I am a thinker and a problem-solver. I like to explore, and I enjoy formal training. I like games that are challenging. If you find the right activity for me, I can excel to a point of expertise. I am often quite serious. I sometimes appear aloof, but I'm just thinking. I am willing to follow instructions if they are fair, clear and mutually beneficial. I am very focused at getting the job done but need clarity as to what the job entails. I have the capability and endurance for anything, but only for my teammate. I tend to gravitate to the person who is the leader of my activities.
